

LEARNING IN YOUR LIVING ROOM

HE AKORANGA KEI TŌ RŪMA NOHO

Here at Wellington Museum, we think it is super important to keep your mind active and your creativity flowing, especially while things are a bit different here in Aotearoa. Being at home can be a super fun opportunity to learn in new and exciting ways!

What makes your home special to you? We have a great activity to get you waioro thinking, your taringa listening, your hands to hanga and your pohewatanga to run free.

You can use this time to connect with whānau and explore what makes you feel most at home!

ACTIVITIES ↓ ↓ ↓ ↓ ↓ ↓ ↓ ↓

What makes you feel connected to your kāinga? These activities are about connecting with your home and the people and taonga in it. It is also about being creative!

1. Find three taonga/treasures in your house that remind you the most of home.

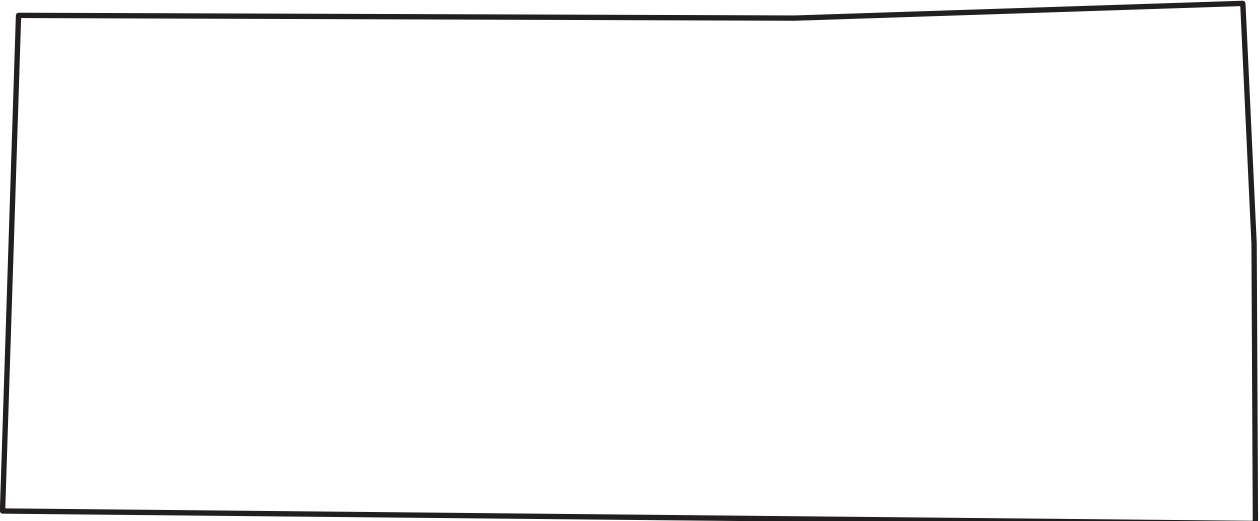

What are they and why did you choose them?

2. Let's share your taonga!

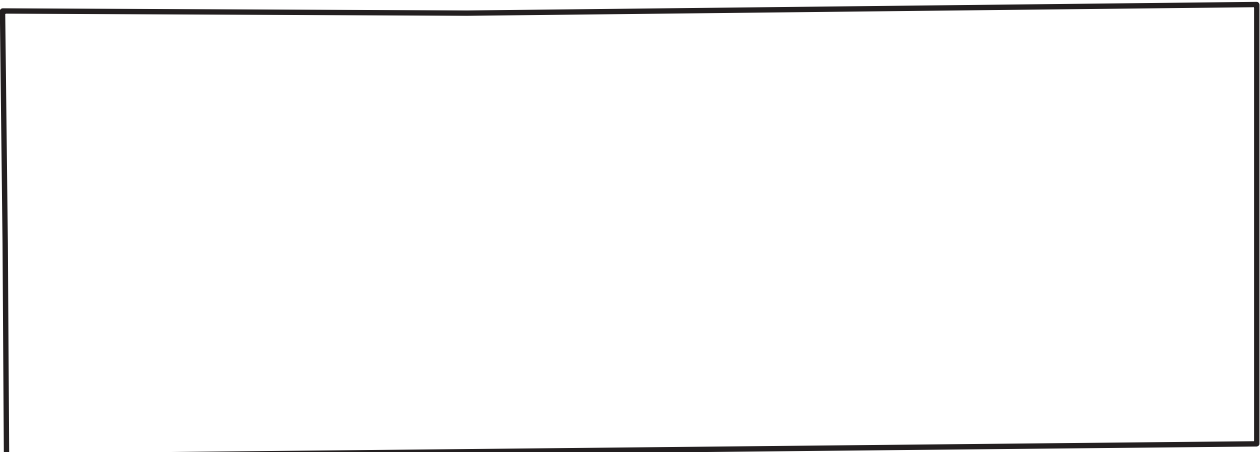

What about it reminds you of your home?

Where did it come from and what is it used for?

If you had to gift it to someone, who would it be and why?

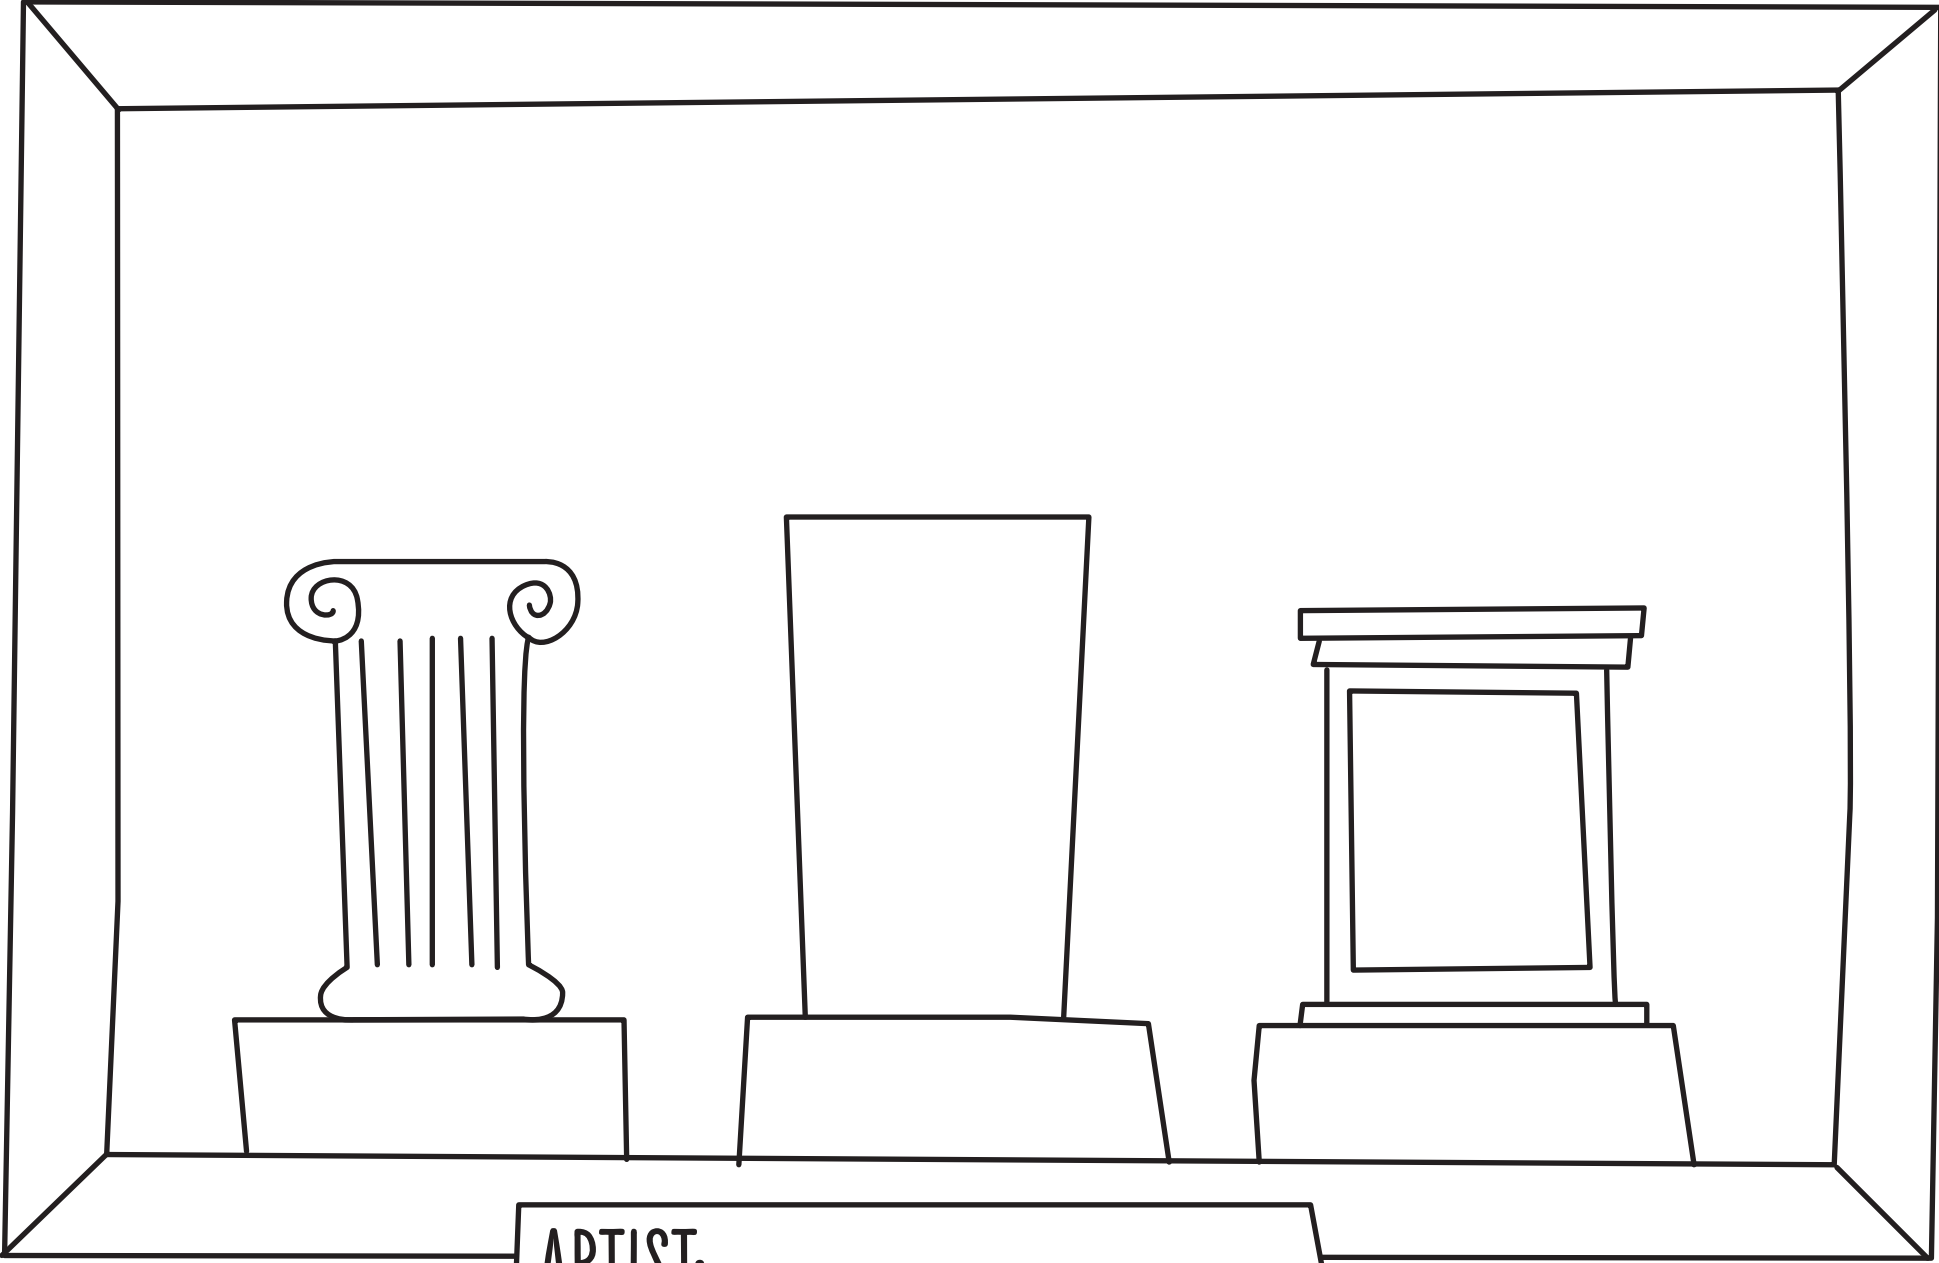

3. Can you draw your taonga?

Choose an art space from the next two pages to show us what your taonga look like. If you are unable to print these activities or you'd like to draw somewhere else that's totally fine, but we'd still love to see it! Don't forget to sign your name and label your taonga.
